

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The system comprises a technical information exchanging server device that is connected to in-office use client devices in respective departments in a company through 5 a network and an outsider cooperative server device that is connected to agent-use client devices in respective departments outside the company through a network, and these server devices are mutually connected so as to communicate with each other.